

APPARENT THAT GOVERNOR CAN NAME A SENATOR

May Now Prepare to Appoint Someone for Vare's Seat

BATTLE IS A WARM ONE

Appearance of Vare Has Little Effect On The Senators

By William K. Hutchinson
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The Governor of Pennsylvania can prepare to appoint a new junior Senator for the Keystone State.

This became apparent today as the Senate prepared to deny a seat to Senator-elect William S. Vare (R) of Pennsylvania, while at the same time dismissing the contest filed against him by William B. Wilson, a Democrat who served as Secretary of Labor in Woodrow Wilson's wartime cabinet. Just as Vare's fate was decided nearly three years ago by the Reed slush fund committee, so has Wilson's fate been determined by the Senate Elections Committee.

The elections committee by unanimous vote declared that Wilson had not proven his contest against Vare for the seat which the latter won by an official majority of 20,000 in Pennsylvania's 1926 senatorial election. A majority of the committee further decided that Vare was legally elected but a minority decreed that the election was voided by fraud and corruption, and that the Senate should declare a vacancy. This the Senate was ready to do, but rather because of the $500,000 spent by Vare's organization in his primary campaign of the same year.

A number of Republican leaders, led by Senators Reed, of Pa., Shortridge, of Cal., Fess, of Ohio, and Waterman, of Col., were fighting an uphill battle against a sentiment already crystallized against Vare. They hoped to get the Philadelphia seated upon the constitutional argument that he was officially elected and officially credited by his state. The arguments seemed doomed to rejection.

The fight against Vare was led by Senator Norris (R) of Neb., the insurgent leader, and Senators Caraway, of Ark., and Bratton of N. M., from the Democratic side of the chamber. They contended the expenditure of $500,000 in Vare's primary and the evidence of fraudulent voting in Philadelphia in the general election, nullified his official victory. They contended Vare should be barred at the door, where he figuratively has stood ever since March 1927.

The personal appearance of Vare to plead his own case on the floor of the Senate had little apparent effect on Senators. They listened to him gravely as he denied fraud and corruption and defended his expenditures.

Rev. Leon T. Moore Will Speak at Banquet Here

The Rev. Leon T. Moore, pastor of the Westminster M. E. Church, is to be one of the speakers at the annual Father and Son banquet which is to be given tomorrow night in the Bristol Presbyterian Church.

Other surprise speakers are being arranged for and these will not be announced previous to the time of the banquet.

A very appetizing menu is being prepared for the affair, and will consist of: fruit cup, celery, roast beef, mashed white potatoes, string beans, cold slaw, rolls, home-made pie, and coffee.

The banquet will be served promptly at 7 o'clock and those who have not as yet made reservations should do so at once.

SPEAKER PLEADS FOR CONTINUANCE OF WORK

Miss Maria Halsey Stryker, of Phila., Addresses Colored Needlework Guild

GARMENTS EXHIBITED

An increase in the number of garments over those of last year was shown in the second annual exhibit of the Colored Branch of the Needlework Guild, in the community house, here, yesterday. The number this year placed on display was 299, while last year's figure was 273.

A message of congratulation was brought to the workers by Miss Maria Halsey Stryker, of Philadelphia, from the national office of the Needlework Guild of America.

"What has been well done is worth remembering," said Miss Stryker, "and your work, the results of which are here shown, will be remembered."

The early days of the Guild were recounted by the speaker, who told of the first work of this nature done in an orphanage in England. "The Guild is doing today what it did 47 years ago. It is making, collecting and giving new garments for those who need them. This is the reason the Needlework Guild has lived, because its simplicity is great. It is an ideal charity."

Miss Stryker told of the work being done by the colored branches of the Guild in the Carolinas, which states she has recently visited. "They are doing good through the personal touch just as you folks here in Bristol are doing. Never lose that personal touch, or the Guild will not be what it is today."

Referring to the work of the Juniors throughout the land Miss Stryker said: "The juniors have caught the idea of giving better than anyone else," and then incidents of their great work were cited. The representative of the national organization expressed her appreciation for the splendid display of garments.

The garments were spread upon tables at the rear of the room, and many dresses were hung above the tables. The list of articles included: three layettes, underwear of every description, socks, caps, blouses, suits for small boys and many other items.

The officers of the Colored Branch of the Guild are: President, Mrs. John Reed, vice-president, Mrs. Noah West; secretary, Miss Celeste Sisco; treasurer, Mrs. Sarah Dixon.

COUNTY PRISON KEEPER SPEAKS TO KIWANIS

Tells Doylestown Organization of Institution's Various Departments

PLAN JOINT SESSION

Boy Scout Makes Plea To Group of Men, Asking Drive Assistance

DOYLESTOWN, Dec. 5.—Kiwanians were treated to two excellent talks Tuesday night at the weekly dinner meeting, one by a Boy Scout who urged members to support the present campaign for Scouting in Bucks county and the other by the Head Keeper of the Bucks County Prison.

Plans were also made for the inter-club meeting with Lansdale Kiwanis next Tuesday night in the gymnasium of the Doylestown High School when members of the domestic science class will serve the dinner. The address of the evening will be made by Lawrence Rupp, of Allentown, Lehigh county's most outstanding attorney. Mr. Rupp will be the grand exalted ruler of the Elks of Pennsylvania next year. He is particularly interested in the activities of the Kiwanis Club of Allentown. On his visit here Mr. Rupp will be the guest of Judge Hiram H. Keller.

President Carmon Ross also announced that a special Christmas committee composed of Stace B. McEntee, James O'Hare, Stewart Hartzel, Wynne James, Jr., and Dr. Herbert T. Crough are preparing for the meeting of December 24 when the annual visit to the Tabor Home will be made.

Head Keeper Grant Myers, of the Bucks County Prison, who has served in that capacity for twelve years, was introduced by Kiwanian Stace B. McEntee.

In his introduction, Mr. McEntee said: "Through the progressiveness of Head Keeper Myers, the grateful assistance of the Court, the District Attorney, County Commissioners and the Sheriff and his Deputy, it has been possible to place the Bucks County Prison first in the Sixth Class of Pennsylvania county prisons. This rating has been given by the Prison Welfare Board at Harrisburg."

Since Head Keeper Myers has been connected with the county prison over a period of twelve years, over 5,000 prisoners have been admitted and all but forty-four, the number on the docket last night have been disposed of.

"Prison work to me is fascinating," declared Head Keeper Myers. "The character of each prisoner over that space of twelve years has been as distinct as his own fingerprints. The countless ways some prisoners prove their worth in prison, is a priceless example of what is possible."

"In the Bucks county prison we have come in contact with practically every class of prisoner from the milder of three human beings to the 15-year-old automobile thief and the shiftless man who refuses to support his family."

"The House of Detention of the county prison has been more frequently occupied in recent years than ever before. Criminals are younger now than when most of us were boys. There are fewer summary conviction prisoners of the 30-day type today."

"The woman's department is entirely separate from the rest of the prison and is in charge of a matron, the wife of the sheriff. Likewise the juveniles are kept in a separate building."

"Food helps to maintain order and discipline. Bad food has been the cause of most of the riots in jails lately. The food should be plain, good and of a variety that is deemed necessary."

"Jails, I believe, are necessary evils. It is my personal opinion however that first-offenders should not come in contact with the confirmed criminal, as is necessary in county jails."

"The bootlegger is a different type of law violator than thief and is in a different class. He is not a stick-up man or a robber."

"The real criminal is usually a good prisoner but very often a trouble-maker of the worst kind."

"Usually our most difficult problem is the inexperienced countryboy who is sentenced to prison; the boy who wants to be tough, the so-called drug store cowboy and shiek."

Head Keeper Myers outlined the various new crimes since the use of the automobile became so common. He also called attention to the fact that many of the so-called bootleggers that get into prison today are not the "higher-ups" but are the hirelings who have "fallen" for "soft money" and a promise that they will be taken care of by "the boss," who very seldom shows up.

"Our Bucks County Prison is somewhat antiquated to most modern conditions, but with the continued support of the county authorities conditions will be bettered as it is deemed necessary."

"It may be interesting for you to know that I have found the violator of (Continued on Page Three)

GIGANTIC PROGRAM WILL FEATURE BOY SCOUT DAY

Fine Program Arranged For Annual Meet to Be Held At Doylestown

AWARDS IN EVENING

"Boyhood and Manhood Together"—the full significance of that phrase will be conveyed to the thoughts of every Bucks Countyman on the third annual Boy Scout Day, this coming Saturday, December 7th, with an all day program beginning at 2 p. m. and concluding in the evening at 10:15 p. m.

The finest manhood of our county will be closely associated with the boyhood for this annual Bucks County Boy Scout day. The number present will vary from five hundred in the afternoon to over one thousand for the evening program. Nearly all of the 875 Scouts, 96 Wolf Cubs and more than 400 men will be taking part in the day's activities. Scouts in the 38 troops and wolf cubs in the 11 packs are looking forward to the competitions.

Starting with the county championship Scoutcraft meet in the afternoon at two in the Bucks County Armory at Doylestown the program for the day will start off with a swift rush with troops from all over the county endeavoring, through competition, to establish their troop the leader.

During the past month of November elimination meets have been held in all of the districts of the Council with the result that the district first and second place winners will be competing for county championship honors. Three different rings have been roped off in the Armory to provide a faster meet schedule.

The afternoon championship events will run on the following schedule: 2:00, knot tying; 2:10, first aid project; 2:30, bow and drill freighting; 2:40, pony back tilt; 3:00, signaling project; 3:15, kiddy car race; 3:25, observation; 3:35, tug-of-war; 3:50, tracking; 4:00, exhibition drill. Place ribbons are being awarded to every Scout whose team wins a first or second or third place. A bronze medal is to be awarded to each Scout achieving first place in knot tying, bow and drill freighting, observation or tracking. A permanent cup will be presented to each troop whose team wins first place in the first aid project, signaling or exhibition drill. To the Scout troop accumulating the greatest number of points, will be presented the "1929 Championship Scoutcraft Troop Banner."

Through arrangements made by Dr. Carmon Ross and the generosity of Joseph Wodock the Strand Theatre of Doylestown has invited the entire Bucks County Council Scout Organization to attend as its guest an "hour movie," including a Grantland Rice Sportlight, exhibiting "Young Hopeful," Abraham Lincoln's "Gettysburg Address," "Our Gang Comedy" and "Fox Movie-tone News."

At 6 p. m. Thawley Hayman, representing the Middle Bucks District Board, has arranged for cocoa to be served by the Doylestown Girl Scouts to all Scouts and leaders at the Masonic Hall.

In the evening starting promptly at 6:45, the entire county organization will swing into line for its annual Boy Scout Council parade through the streets of Doylestown. The parade will consist of eight divisions of nearly a thousand marchers. The divisions will be led by President Thomas B. Stockham, Portmaster Edmund D. Cook, Jr., Deputy Commissioners Joseph I. Burtonwood, Harrison C. Leake, Lloyd S. Bucher and Kenneth Lane; Scoutmasters Albert White, Claude Gilbert, Charles Sale and Jack Pritchard. Nearly all of the musical (Continued on Page Four)

ANDALUSIA MAN PAYS FINE, COSTS FOR HAVING LIQUOR

Patrick McGoldrich is Fined $100 and Costs After Plea of Guilty

HIS PLACE WAS RAIDED

Allentown Man Convicted of Driving Auto While Intoxicated

DOYLESTOWN, Dec. 5.—Patrick McGoldrich, of Andalusia, was fined $100 and costs yesterday by Judge Shull after a plea of guilty of possessing intoxicating liquor had been made. State Police from Morrisville raided the place and found a small quantity of beer and whiskey.

After deliberating a short time a jury yesterday convicted Harold O. Rosenberg, business manager of an Allentown credit concern of a charge of operating his automobile while drunk on June 1, this year, on the Lackawanna Trail at Edison.

Rosenberger's attorney, Harry E. Grim, of Perkasie, made an application for a new trial and Judge Hiram H. Keller released the defendant under $1000 bail, double the original amount.

The defendant was in court yesterday with his wife, Mrs. Helen Rosenberg, to whom he was married since the arrest was made. She was with him on the day he was arrested in front of the State-Highway Patrol station where Rosenberg had stopped to get gasoline.

Earlier in the day, Carl L. Felt, Jr., son of a well known Philadelphia surgeon, pleaded guilty to a similar charge. He was driving another car and was directly in back of Rosenberg when the two cars pulled up in front of the gasoline station at Edison. Felt was fined $200 and costs by Judge Samuel E. Shull, of Stroudsburg.

Rosenberger admitted on the witness stand that he had taken several glasses of beer in Allentown on June 1 when he started out with his friend. They went to Egypt, where, Rosenberg said, they had some more beer, and a glass of whiskey.

"I did not feel the effects of the drink, however, and could drive the car," Rosenberg told the Court. He said he drove the car from Egypt to a point south of Doylestown and had no accident.

Rosenberger was arrested by former Patrolman Welsh when he got out of the machine at Edison and started to walk. The officer said that Rosenberg staggered and that he smelled alcohol on his breath.

Mrs. Rosenberg testified that her husband was not intoxicated.

Dr. John Rich, of Doylestown, before whom Rosenberg was examined after the arrest, testified that his examination revealed the man to be intoxicated and not fit to drive an automobile.

Samuel Minotta and Francis Manco, officers of the "Six Jolly Squirrels" Club, located at Neshaminy Falls, were convicted yesterday by a jury on two charges, possessing intoxicating liquor for beverage purposes and keeping a disorderly house when the place was raided by State Police on November 10 this year.

Judge Samuel E. Shull sentenced them to pay a fine of $100 and costs on the liquor charge and serve three to six months in the county prison. On the disorderly house charge a fine of $25 and costs and from three to six months in prison was imposed. The prison sentences, the Court directed, are to run concurrently.

It cost Sam Markettis, of Philadelphia, $100 and costs to go hunting in Bucks county. Yesterday he pleaded guilty to a charge of possessing and transporting a gallon of moonshine whiskey in his car while on his way home from a gunning trip on November 2. He was stopped near Doylestown by a deputy game protector and a police officer. Judge Shull imposed the sentence.

Ernest Goings, of Philadelphia, charged with driving his automobile while drunk on the Lincoln Highway last month, pleaded guilty yesterday before Judge Shull and was fined $200 and costs.

A jury yesterday directed that the costs be divided in a criminal case in which Alice Andrews, colored, of Bristol, was charged with operating an automobile without the owner's consent. The jury acquitted Andrews and placed one-half the costs on him and the other one-half on the prosecutor, William Wallace, colored, of Bristol.

The grand jury yesterday ignored a bill against William Butler, of Bristol, charged with felonious entry of a Bristol residence where a jug of wine was stolen.

The trial of Mrs. Eleanor Keawatz, 44, charged with the murder of Anthony Thompson, farm hand, last May on a farm near Quakertown, will be called for trial some time today.

All profits made through the sale of Kennedy, Zenith or Brandies radio sets at Arthur G. Britton's radio display in St. James's Church bazaar will be turned over to the church.—(Adv.)

LINDBERGH LEADING IN THE SEARCH FOR NELSON

Takes Command of Fleet of 15 Planes Seeking Missing Flyer

EACH ASSIGNED 5 MILES

CLEVELAND, Dec. 5.—Wreckage, which appeared to be that of an airplane, was sighted about two miles out in Lake Erie, just off Edgewater Park here today, according to a telephone call which was received at the Cleveland Airport, the base of operations in the search for Thomas P. Nelson, missing air mail pilot.

Coast Guards were immediately hurried to the spot where the wreckage was seen, to determine whether it is that of the plane which Nelson was flying when he vanished in a snowstorm early last Monday morning.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 5.—(INS)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, veteran leader of many an aerial searching squadron, arrived at the Cleveland Airport at 8:40 a. m. today to take command of a fleet of 15 planes in a search for an old "buddy," Thomas P. Nelson, air mail pilot who has been missing since early Monday morning.

Defying darkness and snowstorms, the Lone Eagle flew here from New York in an open cockpit Curtiss-Palco biplane. His route lay over the same snow-swept path, which, it is believed, has claimed the life of Nelson.

Swinging his plane into line with the 15 crafts composing the searching squadron, Lindy, wrapped in a fur-lined flying outfit, heavy boots and a helmet, leaped out of his plane and hurriedly conferred with local airport officials.

Immediately afterward he returned to his plane, signaled to the 15 pilots and roared his craft across the field into the air. One by one the other members of the searching fleet followed.

Led by the Lone Eagle, the squadron—the greatest ever assembled in this territory in search for a missing pilot—winged its way eastward over the snow-swept stretches which are believed to hold the fate of Nelson.

Each of the flyers was given a five-mile square portion of territory between here and Bellefonte, Pa., to scour. One of the points that will be thoroughly searched, officials at the Cleveland airport said before the start this morning, will be the vicinity of Stonesburg, Pa., where it was reported a plane was heard to crash Monday.

Part of the searching squadron is heading directly for Andover, O., to give that territory a second combing for trace of the missing pilot. This district is sparsely settled and is covered with nearly 2,000 acres of heavy, almost impenetrable timberland.

Phil Love, of St. Louis, another old flying "buddy" of the missing aviator, was among the pilots of the searching squadron.

Judge Keller to Attend Welfare Dinner Here

Judge Hiram H. Keller, District Attorney Arthur M. Eastburn, C. Harry Clayton and Theodore Watson, all of Doylestown, will be among the guests of honor at the fifth annual dinner of the Italian Welfare Association which is to be held Sunday evening, at five o'clock.

The dinner will be served in St. Ann's Auditorium, Logan street, and indications point to the largest attendance on record.

It is announced that the dinner will be served promptly at five o'clock, and all those attending are urged to be present at that hour. Those who have not as yet made reservations may do so by communicating with Anthony Russo, not later than five o'clock Friday, December 6th.

GRADE "CROSSING" AT GREEN LANE TO BE ABOLISHED

Subway to Be Built Beneath Eight Railroad Tracks At That Point

COMPLETED NEXT YEAR

Roadway to Be Widened To Fifty Feet and Entire Section to Be Improved

The Green Lane grade crossing of the P. R. R. here is to be abolished next year, according to an order issued by the Public Service Commission at Harrisburg, yesterday.

This is the last remaining grade crossing over the main line of the P. R. R. within the limits of Bristol Borough. It was the scene of a most disastrous accident September 30, 1928, when six persons were killed while crossing the tracks in an automobile.

The cost of abolishing the crossing is to be borne jointly by the state, Pennsylvania Railroad, Bristol Borough and Bristol Township. According to the figures of the commission the cost will approximate $303,022, including $19,815 which will be awarded to owners of adjacent property which will be damaged by the subway which is to be constructed beneath the eight railroad tracks.

It is presumed the work will start early next year, as under the ruling of the commission the entire project must be completed by December 31, 1930.

The plans call for an under-pass or subway 50 feet wide from building line to building line. The roadway will be 28 feet and a side-walk on either side measuring 11 feet. There will be an overhead clearance of 15 feet, which is one foot more than that specified in the state law. This additional one foot is being given so as to provide sufficient room for the clearance of not only airplanes of the present size which are now built at the Keystone Aircraft Corporation factory, but also for larger planes which may be built in the future.

It will be necessary to construct a ramp leading from the entrance of the Bristol Patent Leather Company's plant and a 24 inch terra cotta drain will have to be constructed the entire distance from the railroad crossing to the Delaware River. This drain will in some instances be 15 to 20 feet below the surface of the roadway.

The construction of the subway will be what is known as the slab and I-beam type. The grades will be six per cent. There will be 51 thirty-inch I-beams used.

The cost will be apportioned in the following manner: The state will pay $25,000; the Pennsylvania Railroad will build the subway and furnish the material, which will amount to approximately $190,000; Bucks County's share will be 18.18 per cent, or about $55,000; Bristol Borough will pay $22,000 or about 7.27 per cent; while Bristol Township will pay $11,000 or 3.64 per cent.

The work will be done under the supervision of M. L. Kyle, Pennsylvania Railroad engineer in charge.

In connection with the improvement the borough plans to widen Green Lane to 50 feet, and has made application to the state for state aid in this work. If the state aid is granted the borough will pay 25 per cent of the cost of widening the roadway, the county 25 per cent, and the state the remaining 50 per cent.

In connection with the improvements the borough is negotiating with the officials of the Delaware Division of the Pennsylvania Canal for the building of a new bridge over the canal just beyond the railroad crossing. It is planned to straighten Green Lane so as to facilitate the movement of airplanes to the landing field which is located in Bristol Township.

Pouvoir Meeting Is Reported By President of 8 'n' 40

LANGHORNE, Dec. 5.—A report of the recent Pouvoir meeting held in Harrisburg, was given at the meeting of Bucks County Salon, No. 74, of the 8 'n' 40 Societe, in the Memorial House, here, last evening, by Mrs. George Croner, president. The Pouvoir was attended by Mrs. Croner, Pouvoir representative from the Bucks County Salon, and Mrs. Thomas B. Longhurst, vice-president of the State organization.

Three specific cases of welfare work were ordered given attention within the next few days.

A recently elected member, Mrs. Agnes Bonnell, of Langhorne, was obligated at the session last evening. Twenty members were in attendance. Refreshments were served by members from this section.

The January meeting of the organization will take place here on the evening of Wednesday, January 8th.

Mrs. Frances Conway, who has been residing in New York City, is making an extended visit at the home of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Adam Smith, of Walnut and Wilson streets.

TWO ATTITUDES ARE MANIFEST BY INDIVIDUAL SHOPPER TOWARD CHRISTMAS CROWDS; MANY THOROUGHLY ENJOY THEM, OTHERS ARE BORED

Seasonable Just Now to Show Love for Crowds Bent on Making Joy for All at The Christmastide — Fine Attitude Gained Through Hunt for Real Joy

Including today there are only 17 shopping days to Christmas.

Two attitudes towards crowds are rather definitely manifest. One hates them and suffers tortures in them. The other loves them and enjoys every minute in them.

It is the season when so many of all the varying types make the supreme shopping trip of the year. That means crowds. It means being elbowed sharply on the right or bump-ing into someone sharply on the left. It means jostling currents that are in a hurry. It means a come-thither-somewhat experience, with a number of things happening, not all agreeable.

While there are aids, the fact nevertheless emerges that the supreme shopping trip of the year means a dose, in liberal measure, of crowds. That raises the question of these individual attitudes towards human nature in the aggregate, assembled and present. It seems a chance for those doctors accustomed to prescribing this and that for the improvement of the human animal. Those who hate crowds and suffer tortures in them should value doctoring that would change their point of view. It is much more seasonable and pleasant to love crowds and enjoy every minute in them.

YOUTH AND RESPONSIBILITY

"Youth, youth," sighed Max Beerbohm as a gay blade tumbled out of a window. Quite so—always youth has been an excellent peg on which to hang either excuses or expectations. And of late a new burden has been added. Youth, if it has not been entrusted with the responsibilities of the world, has at least been charged with them.

There is no particular virtue attaching to any particular period of life; no special saving quality belongs to any generation. Fewness of years does not determine values or directions. Young men can be impetuous toward war as well as peace, and toward some iron-clad system rather than any general wisdom or liberalism. There are youth leagues of uncompromising communists in Russia and there is a vigorous movement of young royalists in France. In the United States there is in college as much of cynicism, bias and weariness as could be discovered in the choicest collection of diplomats. But the majority of students share the views, the ambitious, the outlook, the mental meekness of the middle-aged. As leaders they could not be distinguished from their fathers.

It is to be remembered as each generation comes into power it has reached what is called maturity and must face the situation which confronts it without supposing youth can step in mystically and suddenly and succeed where older heads have failed. The mature rulers of things in each day may not pass their burdens on; there is no such easy escape from responsibility.

MISLEADING STATISTICS

Casual statistics on unemployment are in many cases likely to do more harm than good. If it is reported, for instance, that for every 100 jobs there are 215 applicants many instinctively leap to the conclusion that this means there are 215 jobs for every 100 jobs. A matter of fact, of every such 2 applicants many probably already have work and are simply seeking to better themselves.

In the same way the public swallows whole numerical statistics of factory employment, making no allowance for the fact that much labor which once was employed in factories is now employed in other occupations. There is always a normal business period, a definite fringe of unemployment, composed principally of two types of labor—"casuals" and "irregulars." The former constitute that class of labor which enjoys regular employment only in times of abnormal prosperity; the latter constitute that marginal group which is the first to be "laid off" when any slackening appears in business.

This is not to condemn the entire body of data on employment; it is merely to call attention to the fact that unless such statistics are carefully considered in relation to one another and in relation to major and minor economic tendencies they are susceptible of serious misinterpretation.

Americanism: Protesting that it can't be done; doing it.

"IS EVERYBODY HAPPY?"

By ELEANORE CAREY

Copyright 1929 Warner Bros. Pictures Inc.
This novel is based on the Warner Bros. & Vitaphone production starring Ted Lewis

SYNOPSIS

Victor Molnar, a musician of the school, hating jazz, comes to New York that his boy, Ted, may have its greater opportunities to become a great violinist. Their slender means are nearly exhausted and Ted has not found a position as violinist. He follows the advice of a theatrical producer and learns to play the saxophone. The producer gets him a job as a jazz player in a Hungarian cafe. He is forced to tell his parents that he has a job as violinist with the New York Symphony Orchestra.

INSTALLMENT IX

"Maybe he will not be able to see us in the balcony, but anyway I am as excited as if it were my own boy!"

Mr. Molnar took the tickets from his pocket and began distributing them to each one, and chattering loudly they all walked up the balcony stairs to their seats.

Slowly the curtain rose on an impressive scene. A large orchestra, with the men all dressed in Tuxedos, covering the entire stage, was before the eyes of the audience. Each man held in his lap his instrument, waiting for the conductor to come in and give them the signal to start.

Dressed in the same manner as the men, but with an air of satisfaction and self-sufficiency, the conductor made his appearance from the left side of the stage and amid the thunderous applause of the assembled multitude he took his place before the orchestra. Bowing in a stately manner he picked up his baton and a great hush—a silent expectancy fell upon the large hall. Suddenly a crash of heavenly harmony rent the air and the New York Symphony Orchestra began its first concert of the season.

"Wear the hat. It will make you be individual."

In the balcony the storm of applause was even more ardent, and excitedly the mother and father of Ted peered through the opera glasses they had brought with them. Slowly and patiently, taking a tremendously long time, so it seemed to Mrs. Molnar, Mr. Molnar searched through the entire orchestra, scanning each face carefully.

"I cannot find him, mother," the old man said softly.

"Look again, father." And once more he searched each face—peering intently at them until his eyes blinked and burned.

"He is not there! I have examined every face."

"Maybe he will be in the next piece," said Mrs. Molnar, trying to cover her uneasiness.

"It is not done that way," said the father bitterly. "My dear, our son has been lying to us!"

"Oh, father, don't say that," and Mrs. Molnar gulped to hold back tears. She was frightened—frightened because of the lie her boy had told, and of what the neighbors would think.

"Yes, mother," the old man said between his teeth, biting each word. "He has been lying to us. I suspected it before—now I know! And without any preliminary warning he got up to leave the hall."

"Come," he commanded his wife. "But we must apologize to our guests—make some sort of an excuse."

"I cannot face them. This is the greatest humiliation of my life—I simply cannot face them. Come on, let's go home!" And without further thought he turned and guided their discourse or explanation he led to the long flight of stairs that led to the street.

Crushed and heartbroken, they slowly descended—speechless from the horror of it all. Mr. Molnar seemed to have aged perceptibly, and his wife, her faith still clinging to belief in her boy, and that there would be some satisfactory explanation, took his arm and supported the faltering steps of her husband. It seemed he might faint from the weakness this shock had brought on, and the proud old man, who had played for the Emperor Franz Joseph, closed his teeth tightly and almost whispered—"He lied to me—he lied to me!"

In the employees coat room of the Hungarian Cafe, Ted was just removing the same old cape and hat that had belonged to his father, when Gail entered the room. She was laughing at him and made as apparently innocent remark as to why he was made up. Ted tried unsuccessfully to hide the old hat and remarked:

"Why make up? Oh, for nothing? I just thought I would wear these tonight. You see, they're not really mine." And he flushed with embarrassment.

"But I know that. I just wish you would let me see how you took it," was Gail's rejoinder as she took the hat and put it upon his head in comedy fashion. "I never thought you would go 'high-hat' so soon!"

Ted's increased embarrassment made him feel desperately foolish as he answered, "But there's a good reason why I had to wear them. You see, father wore them the night of his command performance when he played for the Emperor Franz Joseph. They are an omen of good luck to him—they represent the greatest success of his life. Tonight he insisted that I, too, wear them, and I couldn't refuse without hurting his feelings. My father is still living in the days when this cape and hat were the acme—the insignia of a gentleman, and I would rather do anything else in the world than hurt his feelings."

"You're a sweet boy, Ted, and some day your father is going to be very proud of you—not, perhaps, as a great violinist as he hoped you to be but a way that will be just as gratifying in the end," Gail said with sympathy and sincerity. "I have a great idea!" she continued as she looked at the hat and cape now hanging on the wall. "You should wear those things when you play your song!"

Ted protested, saying that he would be laughed at, but Gail was in earnest.

"It would make you different," she said in all seriousness. "It would make you stand out—be an individual—not just one of the dozens of boys who go upstairs, one fight, and either buy or hire a tuxedo." Outside, near the cafe, an old man and woman were walking slowly along. It was evident to the observer that the old man was weak and at times seemed almost to faint, but the sweet faced old lady seemed to be helping him walk and saying encouraging things to cheer him. The observer could have heard, had he been near enough or cared to, "He lied to us—he lied to us," coming from the old man's mouth in muttering tones. "He can never explain—there is no explanation! He has been deceiving us all the time. It all comes back so clearly now, all the deceitful things he has said—'Don't come to the opening, but wait until I get some passes—I can't practice now—I must hurry to rehearsal—etc., etc.'—all this was lies—lies from the lips of my own son!"

Mrs. Molnar, her heart breaking, looked up toward the dark purple of the night sky, and luminous with electric lights. Before her eyes she saw the sign, "Hungarian Restaurant."

"Look, father! Here is a Hungarian cafe—let's go in and rest a spell. You're tired, and it will do you good. From inside they heard a sweet-voiced tenor singing a Hungarian melody "Oh listen, father, listen. That will soothe you."

This argument seemed to overcome the old man's prejudice, and clinging to his wife's arm, he entered the restaurant.

"He sings well—and Hungarian music. I should like to hear him," he said by way of explanation.

So it happened that Mr. and Mrs. Molnar went to the cafe where their son was employed as a member of the orchestra as well as a feature artist. As they entered, the head waiter led them to a chair in the far corner. Another waiter came up to them for their order.

"Zwei bier, bitte," said Mr. Molnar as the waiter wrote it down.

"Ja, mein Herr."

In the outer room of the cafe Ted was waiting with his band for the tenor who was just finishing his song. He sat smoking and chatting with the other musicians, when one of them casually remarked to another:

"The tenor tells of the opening of the season of the New York Symphony tonight, and I hear they are pretty good, too."

Fear spread over Ted's features as he heard this. Suppose—? But that was impossible for hadn't his father said that he would wait until Ted could get some passes?

The entrance of the manager put an end to this train of thought.

"Let's give them a hot number after that Tenor. Ted, you do something snappy. That tenor is good, but you know. These people who come here want jazz—and jazz it's got to be. So c'mon boys—get out there, and get busy!"

Daughters of America Have A Successful Card Party

The card party held Tuesday in the K. of C. Home, given by the Catholic Daughters of America, Bristol Court, proved successful in every way and a neat sum was realized by the committee, who had taken all pains to make the party a success.

Progressive "500" and pinochle were played.

The successful contestants in "500" and their scores were:

Miss Catherine Dugan, 3940; Mrs. Stacy Cullen, 3870; Miss B. Rafferty, 3840; Miss Margaret McPadden, 3520; Miss Elizabeth Brennan, 3480; Miss Nan Brennan, 3440; Miss Kathryn B. The prize winners in pinochle and their scores were:

WELL AND HAPPY NOW, THANKS TO FAMED KONJOLA

Young Bethlehem Lady Relates How New and Different Medicine Brought Glorious Health

MISS BETTY STANKINS

"My experience with Konjola proves that it is the master of all medicines," said Miss Betty Stankins, 217 Spring Street, Bethlehem, Pa. "For months I was the victim of stomach, liver, and kidney troubles. My appetite was poor and what I did eat failed to digest. Head aches, dizzy spells and a bad taste were the results of liver trouble. This condition almost prevented me from working. Then my kidneys became weakened. My sleep was constantly disturbed, and my back was sore and stiff."

"But Konjola gave me a firm foothold on the road to health. Week by week the improvement became more and more noticeable. By the time I finished four bottles I was well and happy. My stomach, liver and kidneys have been restored to a more normal, healthy action. I can hardly realize I am the same person."

Konjola is sold in Bristol at Hoffman's Cut Rate store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—(Adv.)

Mrs. C. W. Johnson, 728; Miss A. E. Lynn, 700; Miss Margaret McGee, 699; Joseph Ennis, 697; Joseph Wahl, 696; W. M. Armstrong, 692; Miss K. Fallon, 691; Miss Mary Yeagle, 685.

Non-players prizes were given to Mrs. William Murphy, Mrs. Thomas Hoffman and Miss C. Kelly.

The $250 gold piece was given to Miss Marguerite McPadden.

Mr. and Mrs. William Lawler and daughter, Elizabeth, Miss Elizabeth Moore, and Mr. and Mrs. David Dugan, of Burlington, and Miss Katharine Dafter, of Philadelphia, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Cullen, of Cedar street.

Mr. and Mrs. George Stanley, of Edgely, were recent guests of Mrs. Stanley's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kennedy, of Garden street.

County Prison Keeper Speaks To Kiwanians

the Volstead Act who gets into prison, a man of much nerve and very often a troublesome prisoner.

"I believe, after seeing the operation of a prison for twelve years that provision should be made whereby prisoners could earn a certain sum of money per day. For instance, it could be one-third for maintenance, one-third to send to his family and one-third to be held for him to spend for tobacco and a few necessities for himself."

"During 1928 the Bucks County Prison received 555 prisoners and discharged 541."

Very little money is spent for outside labor, the speaker stated. This is due to the fact that most any kind of a mechanic can be found inside the prison.

The prison's part in road making was explained. Last year the prisoners crushed 1,000 tons of stone that was used in making streets about Doylestown and country roads in the township.

The speaker briefly outlined several thrilling experiences he has had at the prison, mentioning two escapes, one by ladder and the other with rope and hook. Neither of the escaped criminals have ever been caught. There were four other escapes during Head Keeper Myers' time but all were captured within a couple hours.

"It is my earnest belief that county prisons should not be used as lock-ups, as it often places a stain upon an innocent person."

"The prisoners, in the summer, take part in operating a very small truck patch and last year raised 1,500 ears of corn, six bushels of onions, 200

two-quart jars of tomatoes, a lot of carrots, beets and string beans.

"Other exercise is afforded prisoners. We allow in the Bucks County Prison, about four hours a day exercise and we have had very little sickness."

"There are many tricks that prisoners try to work in jail. Some have succeeded temporarily but sooner or later all are caught. The extent to which some prisoners went when bootlegging first started, has been quite amusing in some instances. In one case in our prison, a visitor brought his friend in jail a fine jar of peaches. It was later discovered the liquor in the jar of preserved red peppers was found in another cell with the liquor being nothing but whiskey. This is overcome now by every package and bit of food being inspected before it is handed to a prisoner."

Head Keeper Myers' most novel experience was described in his closing remarks when he said: "To have a prisoner take me unawares, hit me in the face and break my nose and disfigure my face, and then tussle with him on the floor of the prison office, and have two other prisoners rush in and help him, and at last succeed in getting the prison keys out of my pocket, and me having the privilege of shooting at him four times—his escape—his recapture—his sentence to the Eastern State Penitentiary for six and one-half to thirteen years, and at last, to have the opportunity of writing a letter to the Board of Pardons, at the request of the prisoner, and recommending his pardon, is one of the very unusual experiences of my times as Keeper at the Bucks County Prison."

A PERFECT MARCEL WAVE IN 12 MINUTES COSTS 2c

Demonstration free of charge. Will wave the hair in your own home by appointment.

Miss Renee Duval says of this wave:

"For years American women touring France have marvelled at the French woman's beautifully marcel-waved hair. Even Paris shop girls looked like hair dressers' models. But the secret has been guarded with great care—both the hair dressers and the women of France were jealous of this quick and easy method of marcelling hair. But, finally, I bring this secret of a perfect marcel wave in 12 minutes at a cost so small that every woman and girl can well afford it. And the great beauty of the MARCELWAVE is that any woman or girl can use it in the privacy of her home and so save the high cost of the professional hair dressers' service."

Mrs. Kaewats Appears In Court On Murder Charge

DOYLESTOWN, Dec. 5.—Dressed in a brown coat with a black fur collar and wearing a small tan felt hat, Mrs. Eleanor Kaewats, 45-year-old wife of William "Jimmy" Kaewats, Corinthian Yacht Club boatman at Essington, Pa., was placed on trial today before Judge Samuel E. Shull, of Stroudsburg, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Bucks County. The grey-haired spectated defendant was the third woman in the history of the county to face the court on a murder charge.

Mrs. Kaewats appeared calm and cheerful although her appearance belied her years. She was brought into court by Mrs. T. Hart Ross, wife of the

APPARENT THAT GOVERNOR CAN NAME A SENATOR

May Now Prepare to Appoint Someone for Vare's Seat

BATTLE IS A WARM ONE

Appearance of Vare Has Little Effect On The Senators

By William K. Hutchinson
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The Governor of Pennsylvania can prepare to appoint a new junior Senator for the Keystone State.

This became apparent today as the Senate prepared to deny a seat to Senator-elect William S. Vare (R) of Pennsylvania, while at the same time dismissing the contest filed against him by William B. Wilson, a Democrat who served as Secretary of Labor in Woodrow Wilson's wartime cabinet. Just as Vare's fate was decided nearly three years ago by the Reed slush fund committee, so has Wilson's fate been determined by the Senate Elections Committee.

The elections committee by unanimous vote declared that Wilson had not proven his contest against Vare for the seat which the latter won by an official majority of 20,000 in Pennsylvania's 1926 senatorial election. A majority of the committee further decided that Vare was legally elected but a minority decreed that the election was voided by fraud and corruption, and that the Senate should declare a vacancy. This the Senate was ready to do, but rather because of the $800,000 spent by Vare's organization in his primary campaign of the same year.

A number of Republican leaders, led by Senators Reed, of Pa., Shortridge, of Cal., Pess, of Ohio, and Waterman, of Col., were fighting an uphill battle against a sentiment already crystallized against Vare. They hoped to get the Philadelphian seated upon the constitutional argument that he was officially elected and officially credited by his state. The arguments seemed doomed to rejection.

The fight against Vare was led by Senator Norris (R) of Neb., the insurgent leader, and Senators Caraway, of Ark., and Bratton of N. M., from the Democratic side of the chamber. They contended the expenditure of $800,000 in Vare's primary and the evidence of fraudulent voting in Philadelphia in the general election, nullified his official victory. They contended Vare should be barred at the door, where he figuratively has stood ever since March 1927.

The personal appearance of Vare to plead his own cause on the floor of the Senate had little apparent effect on Senators. They listened to him gravely as he denied fraud and corruption and defended his expenditures.

SPEAKER PLEADS FOR CONTINUANCE OF WORK

Miss Maria Halsey Stryker, of Phila., Addresses Colored Needlework Guild

GARMENTS EXHIBITED

An increase in the number of garments over those of last year was shown in the second annual exhibit of the Colored Branch of the Needlework Guild, in the community house, here, yesterday. The number this year placed on display was 299, while last year's figure was 273.

A message of congratulation was brought to the workers by Miss Maria Halsey Stryker, of Philadelphia, from the national office of the Needlework Guild of America.

"What has been well done is worth remembering," said Miss Stryker, "and your work, the results of which are here shown, will be remembered."

The early days of the Guild were recounted by the speaker, who told of the first work of this nature done in an orphanage in England. "The Guild is doing today what it did 47 years ago. It is making, collecting and giving new garments for those who need them. This is the reason the Needlework Guild has lived, because its simplicity is great. It is an ideal charity."

Miss Stryker told of the work being done by the colored branches of the Guild in the Carolinas, which states she has recently visited. "They are doing good through the personal touch just as you folks here in Bristol are doing. Never lose that personal touch, or the Guild will not be what it is today."

Referring to the work of the Juniors throughout the land Miss Stryker said: "The juniors have caught the idea of giving better than anyone else," and then incidents of their great work were cited. The representative of the national organization expressed her appreciation for the splendid display of garments.

The garments were spread upon tables at the rear of the room, and many dresses were hung above the tables. The list of articles included: three layettes, underwear of every description, socks, caps, blouses, suits for small boys and many other items.

The officers of the Colored Branch of the Guild are: President, Mrs. John Reed; vice-president, Mrs. Noah West; secretary, Miss Celeste Sisco; treasurer, Mrs. Sarah Dixon.

COUNTY PRISON KEEPER SPEAKS TO KIWANIS

Tells Doylestown Organization of Institution's Various Departments

PLAN JOINT SESSION

Boy Scout Makes Plea To Group of Men, Asking Drive Assistance

DOYLESTOWN, Dec. 5.—Kiwanians were treated to two excellent talks Tuesday night at the weekly dinner meeting, one by a Boy Scout who urged members to support the present campaign for Scouting in Bucks county and the other by the Head Keeper of the Bucks County Prison.

Plans were also made for the inter-club meeting with Lansdale Kiwanis next Tuesday night in the gymnasium of the Doylestown High School when members of the domestic science class will serve the dinner. The address of the evening will be made by Lawrence Rupp, of Allentown, Lehigh county's most outstanding attorney. Mr. Rupp will be the grand exalted ruler of the Elks of Pennsylvania next year. He is particularly interested in the activities of the Kiwanis Club of Allentown. On his visit here Mr. Rupp will be the guest of Judge Hiram H. Keller.

President Carmon Ross also announced that a special Christmas committee composed of Stace B. McEntee, James O'Hare, Stewart Hartzel, Wynne James, Jr., and Dr. Herbert T. Crough are preparing for the meeting of December 24 when the annual visit to the Tabor Home will be made.

Head Keeper Grant Myers, of the Bucks County Prison, who has served in that capacity for twelve years, was introduced by Kiwanian Stace B. McEntee.

In his introduction, Mr. McEntee said: "Through the progressive assistance of Head Keeper Myers, the District Attorney, County Commissioners and the Sheriff and his Deputy, it has been possible to place the Bucks County Prison first in the Sixth Class of Pennsylvania county prisons. This rating has been given by the Prison Welfare Board at Harrisburg."

Since Head Keeper Myers has been connected with the county prison over a period of twelve years, over 5,000 prisoners have been admitted and all but forty-four, the number on the docket last night have been disposed of.

"Prison work to me is fascinating," declared Head Keeper Myers. "The character of each prisoner over that space of twelve years has been as distinct as his own fingerprints. The countless ways some prisoners prove their worth in prison, is a price-less example of what is possible."

"In the Bucks county prison we have come in contact with practically every class of prisoner from the murderer of three human beings to the 15-year-old automobile thief and the shiftless man who refuses to support his family."

"The House of Detention of the county prison has been more frequently occupied in recent years than ever before. Criminals are younger now than when most of us were boys. There are fewer summary conviction prisoners of the 30-day type today."

"The woman's department is entirely separate from the rest of the prison and is in charge of a matron, the wife of the sheriff. Likewise the juveniles are kept in a separate building."

"Food helps to maintain order and discipline. Bad food has been the cause of most of the riots in jails lately. The food should be plain, good and of a variety that is deemed necessary."

"Jails, I believe, are necessary evils. It is my personal opinion however that first-offenders should not come in contact with the confirmed criminal, as is necessary in county jails."

"The bootlegger is a different type of law violator than thief and is in a different class. He is not a stick-up man or a robber."

"The real criminal is usually a good prisoner but very often a trouble-maker of the worst kind."

"Usually our most difficult problem is the inexperienced countryboy who is sentenced to prison; the boy who wants to be tough, the so-called drug store cowboy and shiek."

Head Keeper Myers outlined the various new crimes since the use of the automobile became so common. He also called attention to the fact that many of the so-called bootleggers that get into prison today are not the "higher-ups" but are the hirelings who have "fallen for" "soft money" and a promise that they will be taken care of by "the boss," who very seldom shows up.

"Our Bucks County Prison is somewhat antiquated to most modern conditions, but with the continued support of the county authorities conditions will be bettered as it is deemed necessary."

"It may be interesting for you to know that I have found the violator of

GIGANTIC PROGRAM WILL FEATURE BOY SCOUT DAY

Fine Program Arranged For Annual Meet to Be Held At Doylestown

AWARDS IN EVENING

"Boyhood and Manhood Together"—the full significance of that phrase will be conveyed to the thoughts of every Bucks Countian on the third annual Boy Scout Day, this coming Saturday, December 7th, with an all day program beginning at 2 p. m. and concluding in the evening at 10.15 p. m.

The finest manhood of our county will be closely associated with the boyhood for this annual Bucks County Boy Scout Day. The number present will vary from five hundred in the afternoon to over one thousand for the evening program. Nearly all of the 875 Scouts, 96 Wolf Cubs and more than 400 men will be taking part in the day's activities. Scouts in the 38 troops and wolf cubs in the 11 packs are looking forward to the competitions.

Starting with the county championship Scoutcraft meet in the afternoon at two in the Bucks County Armory at Doylestown the program for the day will start off with a swift rush with troops from all over the county endeavoring, through competition, to establish their troop the leader.

During the past month of November elimination meets have been held in all of the districts of the Council with the result that the district first and second place winners will be competing for county championship honors. Three different rings have been roped off in the Armory to provide a faster meet schedule.

The afternoon championship events will run on the following schedule: 2.00, knot tying; 2.10, first aid project; 2.30, bow and drill freighting; 2.40, pony back tilt; 3.00, signaling project; 3.15, kiddy car race; 3.25, observation; 3.35, tug-of-war; 3.50, tracking; 4.00, exhibition drill. Place ribbons are being awarded to every Scout whose team wins a first or second or third place. A bronze medal is to be awarded to each Scout achieving first place in knot tying, bow and drill freighting, observation or tracking. A permanent cup will be presented to each troop whose team wins first place in the first aid project, signaling or exhibition drill. To the Scout troop accumulating the greatest number of points, will be presented the "1929 Championship Scoutcraft Troop Banner."

Through arrangements made by Dr. Carmon Ross and the generosity of Joseph Wodock the Strand Theatre of Doylestown has invited the entire Bucks County Council Scout Organization to attend as its guest an "hour movie," including a Grantland Rice Sportlight, exhibiting "Young Hopeful," Abraham Lincoln's "Gettysburg Address," "Our Gang Comedy" and "Fox Movietone News."

At 6 p. m. Thawley Hayman, representing the Middle Bucks District Board, has arranged for cocoa to be served by the Doylestown Girl Scouts to all Scouts and leaders at the Masonic Hall.

In the evening starting promptly at 8.45, the entire county organization will swing into line for its annual Boy Scout Council parade through the streets of Doylestown. The parade will consist of eight divisions of nearly a thousand marchers. The divisions will be led by President Thomas B. Stockham, Portmaster Edmund D. Cook, Jr., Deputy Commissioners Joseph I. Burtonwood, Harrison C. Leake, Lloyd S. Bucher and Kenneth Lane; Scoutmasters Albert White, Claude Gilbert, Charles Sale and Jack Pritchard. Nearly all of the musical

ANDALUSIA MAN PAYS FINE, COSTS FOR HAVING LIQUOR

Patrick McGoldrich is Fined $100 and Costs After Plea of Guilty

HIS PLACE WAS RAIDED

Allentown Man Convicted of Driving Auto While Intoxicated

DOYLESTOWN, Dec. 5.—Patrick McGoldrich, of Andalusia, was fined $100 and costs yesterday by Judge Shull after a plea of guilty of possessing intoxicating liquor had been made. State Police from Morrisville raided the place and found a small quantity of beer and whiskey.

After deliberating a short time a jury yesterday convicted Harold O. Rosenberger, business manager of an Allentown credit concern of a charge of operating his automobile while drunk on June 1, this year, on the Lackawanna Trail at Edison. Rosenberger's attorney, Harry E. Grim, of Perkasie, made an application for a new trial and Judge Hiram H. Keller released the defendant under $1000 bail, double the original amount.

The defendant was in court yesterday with his wife, Mrs. Helen Rosenberger, to whom he was married since the arrest was made. She was with him on the day he was arrested in front of the State Highway Patrol substation where Rosenberger had stopped to get gasoline.

Earlier in the day, Carl L. Felt, Jr., son of a well known Philadelphia surgeon, pleaded guilty to a similar charge. He was driving another car and was directly in back of Rosenberger when the two cars pulled up in front of the gasoline station at Edison. Felt was fined $200 and costs by Judge Samuel E. Shull, of Stroudsburg.

Rosenberger admitted on the witness stand that he had taken several glasses of beer in Allentown on June 1 when he started out with his friend. They went to Egypt, where Rosenberger said, they had some more beer, and a glass of whiskey.

"I did not feel the effects of the drink, however, and could drive the car," Rosenberger told the Court. He said he drove the car from Egypt to a point south of Doylestown and had no accident.

Rosenberger was arrested by former Patrolman Welsh when he got out of the machine at Edison and started to walk. The officer said that Rosenberger staggered and that he smelled alcohol on his breath.

Mrs. Rosenberger testified that her husband was not intoxicated. Dr. John Rich, of Doylestown, before whom Rosenberger was examined after the arrest, testified that his examination revealed the man to be intoxicated and not fit to drive an automobile.

Samuel Minotta and Francis Manco, officers of the "Six Jolly Squirrels" Club, located at Neshaminy Falls, were convicted yesterday by a jury on two charges, possessing intoxicating liquor for beverage purposes and keeping a disorderly house when the place was raided by State Police on November 10 this year.

Judge Samuel E. Shull sentenced them to pay a fine of $100 and costs on the liquor charge and serve three to six months in the county prison. On the disorderly house charge a fine of $25 and costs and from three to six months in prison was imposed. The prison sentences, the Court directed, are to run concurrently.

It cost Sam Markettis, of Philadelphia, $100 and costs to go hunting in Bucks county. Yesterday he pleaded guilty to a charge of possessing and transporting a gallon of moonshine whiskey in his car while on his way home from a gunning trip on November 2. He was stopped near Doylestown by a deputy game protector and a police officer. Judge Shull imposed the sentence.

Ernest Goings, of Philadelphia, charged with driving his automobile while drunk on the Lincoln Highway last month, pleaded guilty yesterday before Judge Shull and was fined $200 and costs.

A jury yesterday directed that the costs be divided in a criminal case in which Alice Andrews, colored, of Bristol, was charged with operating an automobile without the owner's consent. The jury acquitted Andrews and placed one-half the costs on him and the other one-half on the prosecutor, William Wallace, colored, of Bristol.

The grand jury yesterday ignored a bill against William Butler, of Bristol, charged with felonious entry of a Bristol residence where a jug of wine was stolen.

The trial of Mrs. Eleanor Keawatz, 44, charged with the murder of Anthony Thompson, farm hand, last May on a farm near Quakertown, will be called for trial some time today.

All profits made through the sale of Kennedy, Zenith or Brandies radio sets at Arthur G. Britton's radio display in St. James's Church bazaar will be turned over to the church.—(Adv.)

BODY OF NELSON AND PLANE WRECKAGE FOUND

Joseph Vincent, Hunting in Section, Sights The Craft

FOUND IN OHIO RAVINE

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 5.—(INS)—The body of Thomas P. Nelson, Plainfield, N. J., air-mail pilot on the Cleveland-New York route, who had been missing since early last Monday, was reported found this afternoon in a ravine, three miles east of Chagrin Falls, O. Discovery of the plane wreckage was made by Joseph Vincent, of Cleveland, who was hunting in that section of the country.

According to telephone calls announcing the discovery, the body of the missing aviator and the airplane were between 25 and 50 feet off the highway. Airplanes were immediately dispatched to the section from the airport here.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 5.—(INS)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, veteran leader of many an aerial searching squadron, arrived at the Cleveland Airport at 8.40 a. m. today to take command of a fleet of 15 planes in a search for an old "buddy," Thomas P. Nelson, air mail pilot who has been missing since early Monday morning.

Defying darkness and snowstorms, the Lone Eagle flew here from New York in an open cockpit Curtiss-Falcon biplane. His route lay over the same snow-swept path, which, it is believed, has claimed the life of Nelson.

Swinging his plane into line with the 15 crafts composing the searching squadron, Lindy, wrapped in a fur-lined flying outfit, heavy boots and a helmet, leaped out of his plane and hurriedly conferred with local airport officials.

Immediately afterward he returned to his plane, signaled to the 15 pilots and roared his craft across the field into the air. One by one the other members of the searching fleet followed.

Led by the Lone Eagle, the squadron—the greatest ever assembled in this territory in search for a missing pilot—winged its way eastward over the snow-swept stretches which are believed to hold the fate of Nelson.

Each of the flyers was given a five-mile square portion of territory between here and Bellefonte, Pa., to scour. One of the points that will be thoroughly searched, officials at the Cleveland airport said before the start this morning, will be the vicinity of Stonesburg, Pa., where it was reported a plane was heard to crash Monday.

Part of the searching squadron is heading directly for Andover, O., to give that territory a second combing for trace of the missing pilot. This district is sparsely settled and is covered with nearly 2,000 acres of heavy, almost impenetrable timberland.

Judge Keller to Attend Welfare Dinner Here

Judge Hiram H. Keller, District Attorney Arthur M. Eastburn, C. Harry Clayton and Theodore Watson, all of Doylestown, will be among the guests of honor at the fifth annual dinner of the Italian Welfare Association which is to be held Sunday evening, at five o'clock.

The dinner will be served in St. Ann's Auditorium, Logan street, and indications point to the largest attendance on record.

It is announced that the dinner will be served promptly at five o'clock, and all those attending are urged to be present at that hour. Those who have not as yet made reservations may do so by communicating with Anthony Russo, not later than five o'clock Friday, December 6th.

GRADE "CROSSING" AT GREEN LANE TO BE ABOLISHED

Subway to Be Built Beneath Eight Railroad Tracks At That Point

COMPLETED NEXT YEAR

Roadway to Be Widened To Fifty Feet and Entire Section to Be Improved

The Green Lane grade crossing of the P. R. R. here is to be abolished next year, according to an order issued by the Public Service Commission at Harrisburg, yesterday.

This is the last remaining grade crossing over the main line of the P. R. R. within the limits of Bristol Borough. It was the scene of a most disastrous accident September 30, 1928, when six persons were killed while crossing the tracks in an automobile.

The cost of abolishing the crossing is to be borne jointly by the state, Pennsylvania Railroad, Bristol Borough and Bristol Township. According to the figures of the commission the cost will approximate $303,022, including $19,815 which will be awarded to owners of adjacent property which will be damaged by the subway which is to be constructed beneath the eight railroad tracks.

It is presumed the work will start early next year, as under the ruling of the commission the entire project must be completed by December 31, 1930.

The plans call for an under-pass or subway 50 feet wide from building line to building line. The roadway will be 28 feet and a side-walk on either side measuring 11 feet. There will be an overhead clearance of 15 feet, which is one foot more than that specified in the state law. This additional one foot is being given so as to provide sufficient room for the clearance of not only airplanes of the present size which are now built at the Keystone Aircraft Corporation factory, but also for larger planes which may be built in the future.

It will be necessary to construct a ramp leading from the entrance of the Bristol Patent Leather Company's plant and a 24 inch terra cotta drain will have to be constructed the entire distance from the railroad crossing to the Delaware River. This drain will in some instances be 15 to 20 feet below the surface of the roadway.

The construction of the subway will be what is known as the slab and I-beam type. The grades will be six per cent. There will be 51 thirty-inch I-beams used.

The cost will be apportioned in the following manner: The state will pay $25,000; the Pennsylvania Railroad will build the subway and furnish the material, which will amount to approximately $190,000; Bucks County's share will be 18.18 per cent, or about $55,000; Bristol Borough will pay $22,000 or about 7.27 per cent; while Bristol Township will pay $11,000 or 3.64 per cent.

The work will be done under the supervision of M. L. Kyle, Pennsylvania Railroad engineer in charge.

In connection with the improvement the borough plans to widen Green Lane to 50 feet, and has made application to the state for state aid in this work. If the state aid is granted the borough will pay 25 per cent of the cost of widening the roadway, the county 25 per cent, and the state the remaining 50 per cent.

In connection with the improvements the borough is negotiating with the officials of the Delaware Division of the Pennsylvania Canal for the building of a new bridge over the canal just beyond the railroad crossing. It is planned to straighten Green Lane so as to facilitate the movement of airplanes to the landing field which is located in Bristol Township.

Pouvoir Meeting Is Reported By President of 8 n' 40

LANGHORNE, Dec. 5.—A report of the recent Pouvoir meeting held in Harrisburg, was given at the meeting of Bucks County Salon, No. 74, of the 8 n' 40 Societe, in the Memorial House, here, last evening, by Mrs. George Croner, president. The Pouvoir was attended by Mrs. Croner, Pouvoir representative from the Bucks County Salon, and Mrs. Thomas B. Longhurst, vice-president of the State organization.

Three specific cases of welfare work were ordered given attention within the next few days.

A recently elected member, Mrs. Agnes Bonnell, of Langhorne, was obligated at the session last evening. Twenty members were in attendance. Refreshments were served by members from this section.

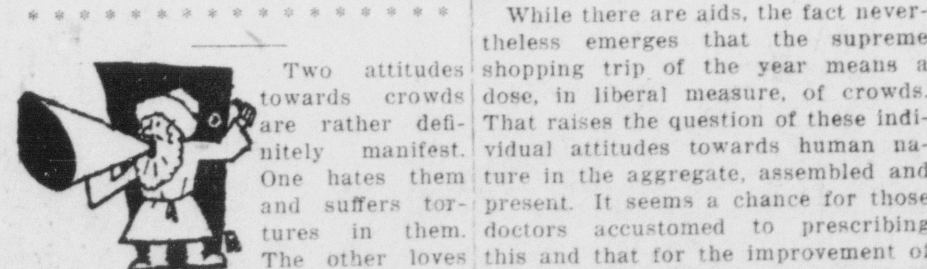

The January meeting of the organization will take place here on the evening of Wednesday, January 8th.

Mrs. Frances Conway, who has been residing in New York City, is making an extended visit at the home of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Adam Smith, of Walnut and Wilson streets.

TWO ATTITUDES ARE MANIFEST BY INDIVIDUAL SHOPPER TOWARD CHRISTMAS CROWDS; MANY THOROUGHLY ENJOY THEM, OTHERS ARE BORED

Seasonable Just Now to Show Love for Crowds Bent on Making Joy for All at The Christmastide — Fine Attitude Gained Through Hunt for Real Joy

Including today there are only 17 shopping days to Christmas.

Two attitudes towards crowds are rather definitely manifest. One hates them and suffers tortures in them. The other loves them and enjoys every minute in them.

It is the season when so many of all the varying types make the supreme shopping trip of the year. That means crowds. It means being elbowed sharply on the right or bump-ing into someone sharply on the left. It means joining currents that are in a hurry. It means a come-thither-somewhere experience, with a number of things happening, not all agreeable.

While there are aids, the fact nevertheless emerges that the supreme shopping trip of the year means a dose, in liberal measure, of crowds. That raises the question of these individual attitudes towards human nature in the aggregate, assembled and present. It seems a chance for those doctors accustomed to prescribing this and that for the improvement of the human animal. Those who hate crowds and suffer tortures in them should value doctoring that would change their point of view. It is much more seasonable and pleasant to love crowds and enjoy every minute in them.

YOUTH AND RESPONSIBILITY

"Youth, youth," sighed Max Beerbohm as a gay blade tumbled out of a window. Quite so—youth has been an excellent peg on which to hang either excuses or expectations. And of late a new burden has been added. Youth, if it has not been entrusted with the responsibilities of the world, has at least been charged with them.

There is no particular virtue attaching to any particular period of life; no special saving quality belongs to any generation. Fewness of years does not determine values or directions. Young men can be impetuous toward war as well as peace, and toward some iron-clad system rather than any general wisdom or liberalism. There are youth leagues of uncompromising communists in Russia and there is a vigorous movement of young royalists in France. In the United States there is in college as much of cynicism, bias and weariness as could be discovered in the choicest collection of diplomats. But the majority of students share the views, the ambitious, the outlook, the mental meekness of the middle-aged. As leaders they could not be distinguished from their fathers.

It is to be remembered as each generation comes into power it has reached what is called maturity and must face the situation which confronts it without supposing youth can step in mystically and suddenly and succeed where older heads have failed. The mature rulers of things in each day may not pass their burdens on; there is no such easy escape from responsibility.

MISLEADING STATISTICS

Casual statistics on unemployment are in many cases likely to do more harm than good. If it is reported, for instance, that for every 100 jobs there are 215 applicants many instinctively leap to the conclusion that this means there are 215 jobs for every 100 jobs. A matter of fact, of every such 215 applicants many probably already have work and are simply seeking to better themselves.

In the same way the public swallows whole numerical statistics of factory employment, making no allowance for the fact that much labor which once was employed in factories is now employed in other occupations. There is always in normal business periods a definite fringe of unemployment, composed principally of two types of labor—"casuals" and "irregulars." The former constitute that class of labor which enjoys regular employment only in times of abnormal prosperity; the latter constitute that marginal group which is the first to be "laid off" when any slackening appears in business.

This is not to condemn the entire body of data on employment; it is merely to call attention to the fact that unless such statistics are carefully considered in relation to one another and in relation to major and minor economic tendencies they are susceptible of serious misinterpretation.

Americanism: Protesting that it can't be done; doing it.

Americanism: Feeling prosperous because you are surrounded by so much stuff that isn't paid for.

In the employees coat room of the Hungarian Cafe, Ted was just removing the same old cape and hat that had belonged to his father, when Gail entered the room. She was laughing at him and made an apparently innocent remark as to why he was made up. Ted tried to successfully to hide the old hat, and remarked:

"Why made up? Oh, for nothing! I just thought I would wear these tonight. You see, they're not really mine. And he flushed with embarrassment.

"Maybe he will not be able to see us in the balcony, but anyway I am as excited as if it were my own boy!"

Mr. Molnar took the tickets from his pocket and began distributing them to each one, and chattering loudly they all walked up the balcony stairs to their seats.

Slowly the curtain rose on an impressive scene. A large orchestra, with the men all dressed in tuxedos, covering the entire stage, was before the eyes of the audience. Each man held in his lap his instrument, waiting for the conductor to come in and give them the signal to start.

Dressed in the same manner as the men, but with an air of satisfaction and self-sufficiency, the conductor made his appearance from the left side of the stage and amid the thunderous applause of the assembled multitude he took his place before the orchestra. Bowing in a stately manner he picked up his baton and a great hush—a silent expectancy fell upon the large hall. Suddenly a crash of heavenly harmony rent the air and the New York Symphony Orchestra began its first concert of the season.

"Wear the hat. It will make you be individual."

In the balcony the storm of applause was even more ardent, and excitedly the mother and father of Ted peered through the opera glasses they had brought with them. Slowly and patiently, taking a tremendously long time, so it seemed to Mrs. Molnar, Mr. Molnar searched through the entire orchestra, scanning each face carefully.

"I cannot find him, mother," the old man said softly.

"Look again, father." And once more he searched each face—peering intently at them until his eyes blinked and burned.

"He is not there! I have examined every face."

"Maybe he will be in the next piece," said Mrs. Molnar, trying to cover her uneasiness.

"It is not done that way," said the father bitterly. "My dear, our son has been lying to us!"

"Oh, father, don't say that," and Mrs. Molnar gulped to hold back tears. She was frightened—frightened because of the lie her boy had told, and of what the neighbors would think.

"Yes, mother," the old man said between his teeth, biting each word, "he has been lying to us. I suspected it before—now I know."

And without any preliminary warning he got up to leave the hall.

"Come," he commanded his wife. "But we must apologize to our guests—make some sort of an excuse."

"I cannot face them. This is the greatest humiliation of my life—I simply cannot face them. Come on, let's go home!" And without further delay he turned and guided her down the stairs that led to the street.

Crushed and heartbroken, they slowly descended—speechless from the horror of it all. Mr. Molnar seemed to have aged perceptibly, and his wife, her faith still clinging to belief in her boy, and that there would be some satisfactory explanation, took his arm and supported the faltering steps of her husband. It seemed he might faint from the weakness this shock had brought on, and the proud old man, who had played for the Emperor Franz Joseph, closed his teeth tightly and almost whispered—"He lied to me—he lied to me!"

In the employees coat room of the Hungarian Cafe, Ted was just removing the same old cape and hat that had belonged to his father, when Gail entered the room. She was laughing at him and made an apparently innocent remark as to why he was made up. Ted tried to successfully to hide the old hat, and remarked:

"Why made up? Oh, for nothing! I just thought I would wear these tonight. You see, they're not really mine. And he flushed with embarrassment.

"But I know that. I just wish you would let me see how you look in them," was Gail's rejoinder as she took the hat and put it upon his head in comedy fashion. "I ever thought you would go 'high-hat' soon!"

Ted's increased embarrassment made him feel desperately foolish as he answered, "But there's a good reason why I had to wear them. You see, father wore them the night of his command performance when he played for the Emperor Franz Joseph. They are an omer of good luck to him—they represent the greatest success of his life. Tonight he insisted that I, too, wear them, and I couldn't refuse without hurting his feelings. My father is still living in the days when this cape and hat were the acme—the insignia of a gentleman, and I would rather do anything else in the world than hurt his feelings."

"You're a sweet boy, Ted, and some day your father is going to be very proud of you—not, perhaps, as a great violinist as he hoped you to be but a way that will be just as gratifying in the end," Gail said with sympathy and sincerity. "I have a great idea!" she continued as she looked at the hat and cape now hanging on the wall. "You should wear those things when you play your song!"

Ted protested, saying that he would be laughed at, but Gail was in earnest.

"It would make you different," she said in all seriousness. "It would make you stand out—be an individual—not just one of the dozens of boys who go upstairs, one night, and either buy or hire a tuxedo."

Outside, nearing the cafe, an old man and woman were walking slowly along. It was evident to the observer that the old man was weak and at times seemed almost to faint, but the sweet faced old lady seemed to be helping him walk and saying encouraging things to cheer him. The observer could have heard, had he been near enough or cared to, "He lied to us—he lied to us," coming from the old man's mouth in muttering tones. "He can never explain—there is no explanation! He has been deceiving us all the time. It all comes back so clearly now, all the deceitful things he has said—'Don't come to the opening, but wait until I get some passes—I can't practice now—I must hurry to rehearsal—etc., etc.'—all this was lies—lies from the lips of my own son!"

Mrs. Molnar, her heart breaking, looked up toward the dark purple of the night sky, and luminous with electric lights. Before her eyes she saw the sign, "Hungarian Restaurant."

"Look, father! Here is a Hungarian cafe—let's go in and rest a spell. You're tired, and it will do you good. From inside they heard a sweet-voiced tenor singing a Hungarian melody. "Oh listen, father, listen. That will soothe you."

This argument seemed to overcome the old man's prejudice, and clinging to his wife's arm, he entered the restaurant.

"He sings well—and Hungarian music. I should like to hear him," he said by way of explanation.

So it happened that Mr. and Mrs. Molnar went to the cafe where their son was employed as a member of the orchestra as well as a feature artist. As they entered, the head waiter led them to a chair in the far corner. Another waiter came up to them for their order.

"Zwei bier, bitte," said Mr. Molnar as the waiter wrote it down.

"Ja, mein Herr."

In the outer room of the cafe Ted was waiting with his band for the tenor who was just finishing his song. He sat smoking and chatting with the other musicians, when one of them casually remarked to another:

"The paper tells of the opening of the season of the New York Symphony tonight, and I hear they are pretty good, too."

Fear spread over Ted's features as he heard this. Suppose—? But that was impossible for hadn't his father said that he would wait until Ted could get some passes?

The entrance of the manager put an end to this train of thought.

"Let's give them a hot number after that Tenor. Ted. You do something snappy. That tenor is good, but you know these people who come here want jazz—and jazz it's got to be. So c'mon boys—get out there, and get busy!"

Young Bethlehem Lady Relates How New and Different Medicine Brought Glorious Health

MISS BETTY STANKINS

"My experience with Konjola proves that it is the master of all medicines," said Miss Betty Stankins, 217 Spring Street, Bethlehem, Pa. "For months I was the victim of stomach, liver, and kidney troubles. My appetite was poor and what I did eat failed to digest. Head aches, dizzy spells and a bad taste were the results of liver trouble. This condition almost prevented me from working. Then my kidneys became weakened. My sleep was constantly disturbed, and my back was sore and stiff.

"But Konjola gave me a firm foothold on the road to health. Week by week the improvement became more and more noticeable. By the time I finished four bottles I was well and happy. My stomach, liver and kidneys have been restored to a more normal, healthy action. I can hardly realize I am the same person."

Konjola is sold in Bristol at Hoffman's Cut Rate store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—(Adv.)

Mrs. C. W. Johnson, 728; Miss A. E. Lynn, 700; Miss Margaret McGee, 699; Joseph Ennis, 697; Joseph Wahl, 696; W. M. Armstrong, 692; Miss K. Fallon, 691; Miss Mary Yeagle, 685.

Non-players prizes were given to Mrs. William Murphy, Mrs. Thomas Hoffman and Miss C. Kelly.

The $2.50 gold piece was given to Miss Marguerite McFadden.

Mr. and Mrs. William Lawler and daughter, Elizabeth, Miss Elizabeth Moore, and Mr. and Mrs. David Dugan, of Burlington, and Miss Katharine Daffer, of Philadelphia, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Cullen, of Cedar street.

County Prison Keeper Speaks To Kiwanians

"I believe, after seeing the operation of a prison for twelve years that provision should be made whereby prisoners could earn a certain sum of money per day. For instance, it could be one-third for maintenance, one-third to send to his family and one-third to be held for him to spend for tobacco and a few necessities for himself.

"During 1928 the Bucks County Prison received 555 prisoners and discharged 541."

Very little money is spent for outside labor, the speaker stated. This is due to the fact that most any kind of a mechanic can be found inside the prison.

The prison's part in road making was explained. Last year the prisoners crushed 1,000 tons of stone that was used in making streets about Doylestown and country roads in the township.

The speaker briefly outlined several thrilling experiences he has had at the prison, mentioning two escapes, one by ladder and the other with rope and hook. Neither of the escaped criminals have ever been caught. There were four other escapes during Head Keeper Myers' time but all were captured within a couple hours.

"It is my earnest belief that county prisons should not be used as lock-ups, as it often places a stain upon an innocent person."

The prisoners, in the summer, take part in operating a very small truck patch and last year raised 1,500 ears of corn, six bushels of onions, 200

two-quart jars of tomatoes, a lot of carrots, beets and string beans.

"Other exercise is afforded prisoners. We allow in the Bucks County Prison, about four hours a day exercise and we have had very little sickness."

"There are many tricks that prisoners try to work in jail. Some have succeeded temporarily but sooner or later all are caught. The extent to which some prisoners went when bootlegging first started, has been quite amusing in some instances. In one case in our prison, a visitor brought his friend in jail a fine jar of peaches. It was later discovered the liquor in which the peaches were packed was rye whiskey. In another instance a jar of preserved red peppers was found in another cell with the liquor being nothing but whiskey. This is overcome now by every package and bit of food being inspected before it is handed to a prisoner."

Head Keeper Myers' most novel experience was described in his closing remarks when he said: "To have a prisoner take me unawares, hit me in the face and break my nose and disfigure my face, and then tussle with him on the floor of the prison office, and have two other prisoners rush in and help him, and at last succeed in getting the prison keys out of my pocket, and me having the privilege of shooting at him four times—his escape—his recapture—his sentence to the Eastern State Penitentiary for six and one-half to thirteen years, and at last, to have the opportunity of writing a letter to the Board of Pardons, at the request of the prisoner, and recommend his pardon, is one of the very unusual experiences of my times as Keeper at the Bucks County Prison."

A PERFECT MARCEL WAVE IN 12 MINUTES COSTS 2c

Demonstration free of charge. Will wave the hair in your own home by appointment.

Miss Renee Duval says of this wave:

"For years American women touring France have marvelled at the French woman's beautifully marcel-waved hair. Even Paris shop girls looked like hair dressers' models. But the secret has been guarded with great care—both the hair dressers and the women of France were jealous of this quick and easy method of marcelling hair. But, finally, I bring this secret of a perfect marcel wave in 12 minutes at a cost so small that every woman and girl can well afford it. And the great beauty of the MARCELWAVE is that any woman or girl can use it in the privacy of her home and so save the high cost of the professional hair dressers' service."

Scout Troops will be competing for the Bristol Exchange Club cup to be presented for one year to the troop having the greatest percentage of membership and the best general appearance. This year a new cup on the same conditions as the Scout troops has been provided for competition among the Wolf Cub Packs through the cooperation of the Doylestown Rotary Club.

As a fitting conclusion to the Boy Scout Day program, the camp rally provides an unusual, enjoyable conclusion. The program consists of: Orchestra; songs led by Walter Rutherford; cheers led by Mahlon Detweiler; presentation of activities committee awards by Chairman Thomas Ross of the four district championship banners, individual awards from the county championship meet, individual awards in knot-tying, freighting, observation and tracking; troop cup awards in first aid, signaling and exhibition drill, and the 1929 championship Scoutcraft troop banner; troop stunts, "The G-zook Band," by Churchville No. 1; "An Accident on the Highway," by Doylestown No. 1; "It," by Perkaskie No. 1; and "Come Into the Mess Shack," by Trevoise No. 1; 1929 Camp Buccoo awards by chairman of the camp committee, Henry Palmer, consisting of cub letters, Scout letters, auxiliary staff letters, staff letters and honorary staff letters; troop stunts—"A Pledge of Allegiance," by Doylestown No. 2; "The Circus," by South Langhorne No. 1; and "Buccoo Squirrels" by Chalfont No. 1.

The council feature this year will be Major Clifton Lisle, of Paoli, who will, through movies, tell of "The Paoli Eagle Scout European Tour," and the "1929 Jamboree in England." The annual Boy Scout Day awards will be made by County President Thomas B. Stockham and will consist of the Doylestown Christmas "feed," the Doylestown Rotary Club wolf cub pack appearance cup, the Bristol Exchange Club Camp Buccoo rally stunt cup, and the Bristol Exchange Club annual Boy Scout Day trophy appearance cup. The program will be concluded by the blowing of "Taps" by Bugler James Townsend.

SEALED PROPOSALS

Public School Building for Bristol Township School District, Bristol Township, Bucks County, Pennsylvania.

Sealed proposals will be received by the Board of School Directors of Bristol Township for the erection of a new Grade School building, Bristol Road, Beaver and Prospect avenues, Bristol Township, Bucks County, Pennsylvania. Plans and specifications for the General Contract may be obtained on and after November 21st, 1929, from the Architects, Heacock & Hokanson, 1211 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, upon the deposit of a CERTIFIED check for Fifty Dollars ($50.00) and an additional CERTIFIED check for Five Dollars ($5.00). The Fifty Dollar deposit will be returned upon the return of the plans and specifications to the Architects' office and the Five Dollar check to be retained by the Architects as payment for the use of the plans and specifications.

The Architects will furnish form for bidding. No bid will be considered unless submitted according to the form and schedule of proposal attached to the specifications.

A certified check or satisfactory bid bond for five per cent (5%) of the amount bid must accompany each bid. Checks and bonds will be returned after (after) awarding of contract.

A surety bond, as required by law, for the full amount of the contract price, conditioned upon the faithful performance of said contract in accordance with the plans and specifications, and an additional bond guaranteeing the payment on the part of the contractor of all bills of material and labor entering into the performance of this said contract, will be required to be furnished and filed with the Owners by the successful contractor.

All proposals must be sealed and marked: "BID FOR GENERAL CONTRACT FOR SCHOOL BUILDING, BRISTOL TOWNSHIP, PENNA."

And shall be delivered to Mr. Arthur Seyfert, secretary of the Board of School Directors, at the Croydon Public School, Croydon, Pa., on or before 7.30 p. m., on Thursday, the twelfth day of December, 1929.

Bids will be opened at the Croydon Public School, Croydon, Penna., on Thursday, December twelfth, 1929, at 10 a. m.

The Board of School Directors of said School District reserves the right to reject any or all bids and to accept or reject any or all alternatives.

By Order of the Board.

Mrs. Kaewats Appears In Court On Murder Charge

DOYLESTOWN, Dec. 5.—Dressed in a brown coat with a black fur collar and wearing a small tan felt hat, Mrs. Eleanor Kaewats, 45-year-old wife of William "Jimmy" Kaewats, Corinthian Yacht Club boatman at Essington, Pa., was placed on trial today before Judge Samuel E. Shull, of Stroudsburg, in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Bucks County. The grey-haired spectated defendant was the third woman in the history of the county to face the court on a murder charge.

Mrs. Kaewats appeared calm and cheerful although her appearance belied her years. She was brought into court by Mrs. T. Hart Ross, wife of the
